

Dickinson College Statement on Freedom of Expression

Dickinson seeks to cultivate inquiry into human experience and the natural world. This goal requires a commitment to open expression and critical thought. Therefore, while affirming its institutional rights and privileges as a private institution, Dickinson is committed to advancing the interests of its campus community members relative to academic freedom, freedom of speech and expression, and the right to peaceably assemble.

We strive to provide learning opportunities that foster intellectual openness, social awareness, and civic engagement. A Dickinson education takes place in a diverse, inc
