

Spring 2021

International Studies Elective Courses

Security Studies / Global Security Concentration Courses

INST 27/POSC 277/MEST 266: International Politics of the Middle East (WID course)

POSC 290/PHIL 261: W

POSC 390: National Se

SOCI 272: Islam and the

WGSS 301: Immigration

World Economy & Development Concentration Courses

INST 20: Globalization, Inequality, & Personal Finance in an Interdependent World

INST 20/ECON 314: Gender and Development

INBM 230: International Organizational Behavior

INBM 240: Marketing in a Global Context

POSC 208/PHIL 285: Justice in World Politics

Sustainability & the Global Environment Concentration Courses

ECON 222: Environmental Economics

ERS 250: Intro to Arctic Studies

HIST 151: History of the Environment

POSC 208/PHIL 285: Justice in World Politics

Notes:

1. Students in the class of 2021 working in the Globalization & Sustainability concentration can select concentration courses from both the World Economy & Development & the Sustainability & the Global Environment lists. Note that the class of 2021 is the last class that can elect the "Globalization & Sustainability" concentration.
2. IS majors with a country or region concentration should consult Banner and their advisor for courses that count toward their concentration.
3. POSC 208/PHIL 285 Justice in World Politics covers three main topics: migration (global security); distributive justice (world economy & development); justice & the environment (sustainability & global environment). It can count for all three concentrations provided that students, in consultation with the professor, do their research project on a topic related to their particular INST concentration.